To whom it may concern

Dear Sirs:

I am writing in wholehearted support of Mrs. PAULINA SANTORO. I have known Paulina for about eight years and I have the best impression of her work in administration and public affairs. Actually, she worked as Academic Assistant in the International Center for Biomedicine, a medical research center of excellence widely prestigious worldwide. She is a very intelligent young woman, with advanced cultural skills, and knowledgeable in many areas of leadership in an Enterprise. Her work is characterized for its highly rigorous management. As a matter of fact, she supported in a very efficient way the coordination of at least nine international conferences held in our Institute, along with the permanent communication with top research center abroad. In this context, I rank Paulina among the 1% top employees that I have known in my 50-years' experience in the scientific research field.

In addition, I have been impressed of her commitment to our Foundation and the difficult task of extending our research achievements and creation of new technologies to society in general. No doubt that Paulina will be an outstanding addition to your team.

All Good wishes, sincerely,

Dr. Ricardo B. Maccioni MD, PhD
